

Paul Edward Corley, Jr.
Chief Executive Officer

With more than 25 years of homebuilding experience, including more than a decade as the CEO of one of the region's top residential community developers, Paul established Edward Andrews Homes in 2007 and has spearheaded its growth through his ability to provide the company with vision coupled with strategic method. It is his personal goal to make Edward Andrews Homes Georgia's premier private homebuilder.

To accomplish this vision, Paul is active in the day-to-day management of the firm, guiding the overall direction and growth strategy. He leads land acquisition and development with his ability to envision large tracks of land with an eye for their future development as award-winning communities.

Over the years, Paul learned what is right, and what is wrong with the customized homebuilding process. During these years, he solidified his vision for a different kind of homebuilding company — one where the customer is at the center of the process every step of the way. With Edward Andrews Homes he has delivered, with the end result being that every Edward Andrews Homes homeowner benefits from his experience, keen understanding of evolving homebuyer needs, and his innate ability to find new opportunities that maximize the homeowner's overall market value.

Paul earned his Bachelor of Arts from the University of Florida in 1987, and actively contributes to the homebuilding industry by participating in numerous industry associations, including the Greater Atlanta Homebuilders Association, the National Homebuilders Association, and the Atlanta area Council for Quality Growth, where he serves on the executive board of directors. He is a long-standing member of the Urban Land Institute and its Council for Community Development.

